

BROOKS OPENS NORTHWOOD PLAZA OUTPATIENT CENTER

(JACKSONVILLE, Fla.) – Brooks Rehabilitation has opened its new Northwood Plaza Outpatient Center. This is the third Brooks outpatient site in the Tampa/Gulf Coast Region. “We are very excited about entering the Clearwater market. This location will enable us to offer high quality therapy to more patients,” said Jason Howard, Senior Vice President, Brooks Outpatient Rehabilitation. According to Howard, the new clinic is located in a very convenient area of Clearwater.

The Northwood Plaza site will specialize in Physical and Occupational Therapy and may add additional services in the future. The clinic is located in an established and accessible shopping center featuring a Publix, Starbucks, Stein Mart and various other retail shops. Center Manager, Lori Klees is a dually licensed occupational and physical therapist and brings a wealth of outpatient rehabilitation experience to Brooks.

This is the company’s third location in the Tampa area; Brooks Rehabilitation also has sites in Hudson and New Port Richey. The Northwood Plaza site opened in early January and is accepting patients for physical and occupational therapy. The facility is located at 2516A N. McMullen Booth Road.

This is Brooks Rehabilitation’s 23rd outpatient center. The company, based in Jacksonville, Florida, has an extensive network of outpatient sites from Northeast Florida to Central Florida and Southeast Georgia. Brooks outpatient centers provide a number of specialty programs that range from back pain to a comprehensive brain injury day treatment program. These programs make the transition from the hospital back into the community more seamless. They also allow Brooks to serve more patients who have an injury or illness not requiring hospitalization.
